STATER BROS. MARKETS NEWSLETTER

Happy Holidays!

Stater Bros. Teammates,

As we come to the close of another successful year, I'd like to express my gratitude to each and every member of the Stater Bros. team. It is because of you that our company continues to enjoy the success it's had.

As you read this issue of Fresh Take, I hope you enjoy the feature stories including the one about our beautiful new Chino Preserve store and the interview about creating attention-grabbing store displays. I'd like you to pay special attention to the Customer Compliments section because, as you read through them, you'll detect a recurring theme in every compliment. In each, one or more of our teammates have made a customer extraordinarily happy and appreciative, often because they didn't expect it. That's the meaning of exceeding expectations. As a matter of fact, we received so many compliments that we didn't have enough space to include most of them!

WHAT YOU DO MAKES A DIFFERENCE - AND PEOPLE NOTICE!

People are busy these days. For them to take the time to call or email us to let us know what a wonderful job you did means you made a tremendous impression on them. These people won't forget. Our Jack would often invoke a famous quote from American author Maya Angelou:

"I've learned that people will forget what you said, people will forget what you did, but people will never forget how you made them feel."

In our line of business, we compete every day to win over the hearts and minds of consumers who have plenty of choices of where to shop. They come to our stores because they know they'll find good quality at competitive prices, but THEY KEEP COMING BACK BECAUSE OF YOU! While it's true that shoppers look for low prices, they also go where they feel good.

When you give your kids, husbands, wives, family and friends their Christmas gifts this year, you hope that your presents bring them pure joy and happiness. Let's do the same for our customers. Oftentimes it's just the simplest hello or passing smile that makes that customer feel that shopping at our stores is different from the competition. They can get cereal anywhere. Why wouldn't they want to get it where the employees make them feel good too?

Thank you for all that you do and I wish you and your families a very Merry Christmas and a healthy holiday season!

New to the Neighborhood

By Jeannie Le

For the few who haven't heard, we had an exciting event happen in September of this year ... the grand opening of a new store! From the moment you walk into our new Chino Preserve store in Chino, CA, bright natural light embraces you as warm, smiling faces and colorful flowers greet you right at the door. This store marks our continued progress towards our goal of becoming California's major multi-cultural grocery store, with a wide array of new Asian- and Hispanic-inspired products and services.

Believe it or not, the Chino Preserve community had waited a long 18 years for a store like Stater Bros. to arrive. So, it's only natural that we came along.

Proudly leading the store is store manager Johnny Yzaguirre, who couldn't help but express how smooth and practically easy grand opening day was. Only good things were said about the store and the dedicated team that made it all possible. So, what's all the fuss about this store compared to others?

Of course, much like our other stores, we have offerings like the service deli and hot-and-ready meals, but this store's mark in our history is its expanded international product selection and service. There's such an abundance of new offerings that it's hard to know where to begin! Over 20 new specialty produce items and fruits like tropical dragon fruit and hearty shiitake mushrooms have been added along with other incredible items like crispy pork katsu and flavorful enchilada heat-and-eat meals over in the service deli.

Store Manager: Johnny Yzaguirre

“ You really see how excited the community is to be here with us. They want to grow with us. ”
Johnny Yzaguirre, Store Manager

Unique items like Japan's popular ramune pop drinks and new Shin Ramyun flavors are just a few to have been added to our center store section. Excitingly, new decadent items like sweet and nutty Ube cupcakes and deliciously soft milk bread, just to name a few, have been added to our bakery.

But the biggest draw is the expanded hot wings and new Korean fried chicken wings that Johnny couldn't help but rave about. Mouthwatering new flavors like sweet heat and classic barbecue will immediately draw you in with their enticing aromas. They're so delicious that you can even hear him rave about the wings over the in-store radio!

Nearly every department was expanded with new and exciting products and offerings. From our renowned meat department that now offers shaved meats perfect for hot pot and delicious Asian-inspired marinated meats like Korean bulgogi BBQ beef, which is perfect for grilling or stir-fry.

For Johnny, this grand opening is about much more than the store and all that it has to offer. It all comes back to what our store can bring to the growing community. In his words, "Our hope is to grow with the community."

It's hard to miss the sense of pride within Johnny and the team. Everyone is excited to bring something new and fresh to the neighborhood and invest in its growth. "You really see how excited the community is to be here with us. They want to grow with us." Even weeks after the grand opening, the pure joy for this store can still be felt in not just the teammates but the customers too. It's amazing to witness how quickly and warmly our store has been embraced by the community.

Supporting those with cancer is something we can all believe in.

By Jonathan Lieu

On the morning of Sunday, October 1, 2023, over 8,000 “Believers” convened in Downtown Redlands for the 16th Annual Believe Walk. The Believe Walk was created by Inland Women Fighting Cancer and Stater Bros. Charities as a way for the local community to support those who fought and continue to fight this horrible disease and has grown to become one of the largest cancer-fighting events in California’s Inland Empire.

Rather than going directly to cancer research, the funds collected for the Believe Walk are distributed to organizations that provide care for cancer patients and their families in our Southern California communities. In this way, money goes to where it can make the most direct and immediate impact for patients; critical services such as cancer screenings, life-saving treatments, transportation to and from appointments, financial assistance, and importantly, help in navigating the often daunting intricacies of getting cancer care.

This year, the 5K walk collected over $1.8 million dollars through a combination of online and in-store donations from generous donors and event sponsors. The sense of community at the event is difficult to convey in words and must be experienced in person to be fully understood. The popularity of the Believe Walk year after year is a direct result of the camaraderie and feeling of common purpose that every participant feels as they form a united front against cancer.

Customer Compliments

Ellen stated she was having her 25-year vow renewal that day and last minute was looking for 18 orange roses. She stated she saw some in the store that were not in great shape. That's when Fernanda appeared and was the big help she could have asked for. She explained her situation and Fernanda took it from there. Fernanda advised Ellen to go pay for the 18 roses and come back after her appointment. Ellen was blown away when she returned. Fernanda had found 18 beautiful orange roses, removed all the thorns, and wrapped them. Ellen proceeded out in a hurry and left her phone behind. Fernanda ran out and returned her phone. Ellen said Fernanda made the day perfect and all the ladies loved the roses. Fernanda went above and beyond and is greatly appreciated.

Mark & Sam - Meat Clerks, #049

I would like to give a HUGE shoutout to Mark and Sam and the other butchers in the meat department. We started a food booth this year and decided to order our meat from Stater Bros. We had two events. One required 400 lbs. of top sirloin and one required 200 lbs. of top sirloin. The team at my local store came through on both occasions. We actually had people come back and tell us they could tell our meat was high quality. Thank you Mark and Sam for helping us be successful! - Andy

Gavin French - Courtesy Clerk, #083

I just wanted to commend an employee named Gavin at the Sun City store on Sun City Blvd. I have observed him going out of his way to help people and seniors in the parking lot that didn't even ask for help but were obviously struggling. This is the way employees should be and especially the young people that a lot of times don't seem to have that natural respect, but he certainly does, and it was so refreshing. When I told him, he was very humble about it like it was nothing. I appreciate that kind of employee and it makes me want to shop here when I see that.

Store #092

DJ called in to share a compliment for the Lake Arrowhead store. After the storms, he has not been able to get out much due to illness. He cannot walk long distances. A couple of days ago, he and his grandson went into the store and there were no electric carts available. DJ went in to ask and an employee advised they would bring one out as soon as one became available. DJ and his grandson went outside to sit and wait. The store manager brought out a chair for him to sit on. Moments later, another employee delivered the electric cart. When they completed their shopping, they were led to a checkout and helped out to their car. DJ said the customer service was outstanding and appreciated.

Hi, I just wanted to let you know how pleased I am with your Whittier location on Mills and Mulberry. Store Manager Manny is awesome! Any time I need anything special he takes care of me like I'm the number one customer there. His store is friendly and very down to earth. I used to shop at Ralph's on Whittier and Colima, and Manny's store blows them away. In fact, it blows all other supermarkets away, including Walmart.

Christina Matias - CSR, #035

Hi! I wanted to let you all know what a wonderful experience I had at the store on Baker/Fairview in Costa Mesa. I shop here every week, often, and this is my favorite place to shop. I love your staff and the way the staff all say hi when I come in. I had two of my kids with me on a particular afternoon. I had a boot on my foot (from breaking a bone) and was trying to pick up a couple of things for dinner. We get to the checkout and one of my favorite cashiers, Christina, was there. She saw me and said, "Hello, how are you?," as she always does. Christina is super kind and always makes me and my kids feel like friends and cherished customers. She

Diana Contreras - CSR, #084

I did some quick shopping this morning at store #84 in Desert Hot Springs. I was in line for register #1 with Diana at the register. When I first approached, the customer in front of me was a homeless gentleman that I see around town often. He was speaking very quietly and seemed to be having difficulty conveying what he wanted to say. From what I heard, it appeared that he was asking Diana if he could choose three grocery items to take with him today and then he would come back next week once his food stamps came in for next month. He was obviously hungry. I was about to offer to buy him something myself, but Diana kindly stopped him and asked him if he was hungry, which he said he was. She then asked him to go get himself a big pre-made sandwich, bag of chips and bottled water so she could check me out and then she would pay for his food. It's my opinion that most people in her position would've become bothered by him, reacted rudely and just dismissed him without thinking twice. It's so rare to see people showing kindness to others, especially the homeless. I have personally experienced homelessness and I still remember the names of the few people that showed me kindness or helped me in my time of need. Here in the desert, it has been unbearably hot with temps reaching 116°. That poor man suffers daily, but got us all checked out and on our way. I walked outside and realized I had left my keys, my phone, and my purse in my locked car. It just so happened that Christina saw me because she was getting off work at the same time. At this point, I had tears in my eyes because I had $200 of groceries and a lot of frozen items, I had a boot on my foot, couldn't walk home, and my kids were upset. Christina walks up and says, "I got you. Here's my phone. Call who you need to, and I'll take you home," without hesitation. She was willing to drive me, my kids, and all my groceries to wherever I needed! Who does that?! It was so sweet to have someone do that for me, especially one of your staff who doesn't really even know me. I felt so comforted by Christina and I just wanted to share with you so that you know what an amazing person you have working for you and taking care of your customers! She took me home, waited for me to get my spare key, and even drove me back to the parking lot so I could get my car! Wow! Thank you for investing in people that care. As a manager of a busy restaurant, I always say, "I can train skills, but I can't train a person to care." Christina is a gem! - Katie Perez today, thanks to the kindness of your employee, he won't go hungry. I'm sure a lot of the feedback you receive is complaints and disgruntled customers. I thought it would be nice to hear about an employee that went above and beyond to be kind and I felt Diana deserved to be recognized for a kindness she was not at all required to give. It literally brought tears to my eyes. Thank you for allowing me to share. - Cristen Cook

I am a regular shopper at your store. Service was always decent until I was served by Mr. Jacob. His patience with me and my husband is appreciated as we are oldies and he took the time to help us out with our needs. He even explained and looked for the merchandise we were looking for. He went above and beyond to help us out. Thank you, Mr. Jacob. We appreciate the way you take care of customers - a job well done. - Julie Ngiam

A Magical Conversation with Holly Day!

We catch up with Holly and find out what's on her holiday music playlist this year.

- Holly's Christmas Playlist
- "Love You More at Christmas Time" Kelly Rowland
 - "Christmas Waltz" The Carpenters
 - "The Christmas Waltz" Laufey
 - "I Need You Christmas" The Jonas Brothers
 - "Santa, Can't You Hear Me" Kelly Clarkson & Ariana Grande

For example, how do you compete with Amazon if you're still doing handwritten Christmas lists? At some point, you have to adjust to your reality, so with my newfound knowledge, I'll be able to help us innovate.

FT: Last year you mentioned that you had been listening to a Marvin Gaye Christmas song. What's on your holiday playlist this year?

HD: I don't mean to incur the wrath of Beyoncé's BeyHive, but I really like Kelly Rowland's "Love You More at Christmas Time." It's so bubbly and cheerful ... like me! And I have to mention "Christmas Waltz" by The Carpenters. When I hear Karen Carpenter's soothing voice and Richard Carpenter's whimsical musical arrangement, it just sounds to me the way the holidays should sound. There's also a young, new artist named Laufey who does a wonderful rendition of it that takes me back to the 40s. It still surprises me to hear such a classic sound coming from someone so young.

FT: What do you see in your future?

HD: One of the great things about getting my degree is it will give me options if I ever decide to leave the North Pole, not that I have any immediate plans right now. I know your readers probably think that no one quits up there and up to this point, getting a job at the North Pole was pretty much a gig for life, but we live in an ever-changing world. I've discovered that I have a passion for making children smile, so if I ever decide to strike out on my own, maybe one day I'll start my own toy manufacturing company. That's a place where the supply chain management skills I'll learn could really come in handy – sourcing materials and parts and making sure we get them at the right place and time to be assembled into toys. We would create all sorts of toys except stuffed animals and plushes. The thought of poking and prodding fabric bodies with sewing needles hits a little too close to home for me.

FT: Do you have anything interesting planned?

HD: I think I'm going to pay a visit to your new Chino store in a community called The Preserve. The elf that's stationed there told me that there's a lot of new stuff there. When I heard that they have things like soy garlic Korean chicken wings and Japanese milk bread sandwiches, I knew I'd have to check it out.

The Little Drummer Elf entertains several nutcrackers.

"I hope whoever put me in here knows that I absorb odors easily."

Last year, we had the pleasure of talking to Holly Day, one of our very own Hometown Elves. She revealed how her relationship with Stater Bros. began and talked a bit about her future plans and dreams. This year, we reached out to her again for an update on her life for our readers.

FRESH TAKE: Season's Greetings, Holly! How have you been?

HOLLY DAY: Thanks for asking. I've been doing well. I was just helping Santa get ready for the holiday season this year. Finding out who's been naughty and nice and everything in between!

FT: Where are you assigned this year?

HD: I'm sort of a floater this year. I've been spending some days at your corporate office and on other days I might bounce around to a few of the stores to check on the other elves. Santa has me training some of them to show them the ropes. Although they try to stay out of trouble, occasionally they'll get themselves into some interesting predicaments, which you'll see in some of the pictures.

FT: How has your progress been with your college courses?

HD: I'm close to graduating with an Associate of Arts in Business Administration from San Bernardino Valley College. Greg Jones, who is the Stater Bros. Senior Training Development Specialist, has been great in helping me prepare to transfer to Cal State San Bernardino. I'm going to enroll in their online Bachelor of Arts in Administration program with a concentration in Supply Chain Management. Santa needs all the help he can get to transport all the gifts where they need to go. It can be complex at times, but with the knowledge I'll gain, I can help the North Pole get ready for the future. I'll tell you one thing; taking classes remotely has been a game-changer for me since I'm always on the go or traveling.

FT: What will you do after you graduate?

HD: As I mentioned last year, Santa thinks there's a future for me in the home office so after I graduate from CSUSB, the plan is to have me based mainly out of the North Pole. Like Stater Bros., Santa's Workshop has deeply rooted traditions and that's great because it gives us a strong foundation and identity, but there are downsides to that too, like stifling innovation and being slow to react to new challenges.

"What are you pointing at? That's not yo' cheese."

Turn humdrum retail displays into visual masterpieces.

Unleash your inner creativity to create product displays that excite your customers.

By Jonathan Lieu

Shoppers love a great retail product display. When someone walks into a store and sees products presented in a way that exudes creativity and imagination, it grabs their attention. They're likely to smile and give a nod of approval before they continue shopping. Good things happen when you put people in a positive mood and this can be especially impactful during the holidays.

To gather some insights, we asked a couple of Stater Bros. teammates who are known for their visual merchandising acumen for some of their thoughts on the topic; Jon Lehman - Store Manager at Store #23 Yucaipa, and Rob Charbonneau - Director Floral.

FRESH TAKE: Why do you decorate for the holidays and who do you do it for?

JON LEHMAN: The main reason I like to decorate the store is for the customers and employees. The responses from customers are always fun to see. The usual decorations all play their part, but what really brings excitement to the store are the more elaborate displays. Decorations aren't just for holidays. They're for any event or item that you can build a themed display around to draw attention.

ROB CHARBONNEAU: Decorating for the holidays is a distraction from "troubles" like politics, stress, social issues, etc., and it allows an escape. In my mind, it is more of an art than a process. I enjoy creating spaces that are both visually pleasing and fun for friends and guests.

FT: What are some examples of decorating you've done both personally and at work?

JL: Over the years I've been involved in numerous events that I've decorated for, including many company-related events as well as personal events. Some examples are a Stater Bros. lobby display at the corporate office, themed ice cream socials at the Loma Linda Children's Hospital, and outside organization themed company parties. I also currently own and operate a professional haunted attraction that requires decorating and set design.

RC: Every year, at my house, Halloween goes up on October 30 and is taken down the next day. The display is very elaborate and detailed. Lighting is a huge component. The reason for the short period of the display is the weather. Wind is not a friend of yard decorations. Christmas exterior decorations are usually minimal, but the interior is more elaborate. When I worked in the stores, the store displays were done for every holiday.

Valentine's Day was always a favorite and involved the store team.

FT: Have you always considered yourself creative and was your creativity encouraged and fostered at the company?

JL: I've always had a creative imagination but never really had an outlet to express it. The first time I stepped outside the box was when I was an Assistant Manager at Store #112 West Redlands. I started doing some big displays that were definitely not Stater-approved or encouraged. Luckily this is where Jack Brown and Debbie Brown shopped, and they took notice. The reaction that we were getting from customers as well as the employees was exciting to see. After a while, it just became expected that we were going to do something over the top.

RC: Yes, to a fault. I wish I could be that person with one tote of the same decorations that are brought out every year instead of creating a new look or experience every year. I've worked for the company for over 30 years, and it was not always encouraged. More recently the views have shifted to being pro-creative. The Floral Department encourages creativity and rewards it with many display-building competitions throughout the year.

FT: What is your design process? How do you come up with ideas?

JL: Coming up with the idea and figuring out how to build it is probably my favorite part of the process. Anytime you create a themed display, you need to take that item, idea, or story and build around it. I'll go over that idea a thousand times in my head and will continually add things to it that usually push the boundaries by the time it's done. That's what separates an average display from a WOW display.

RC: My design process is always a work in progress and may start off as one idea or look, and be totally different when I finish. I don't really have a process, but more an inspirational idea I build from. The design is finished when the feeling and look I'm going for is achieved. I visit Manhattan, NY almost every December and get a lot of inspiration from the city at Christmas.

FT: How much of what you do creatively at work, is an outlet for you to achieve personal gratification?

JL: I always tell my employees to find something that they love to do. Everyone needs an outlet, whether it's creating something, playing an instrument, or even collecting comic books. The times when the company had floral contests or any type of fun display-building opportunities definitely allowed me to use that as an outlet. Once you see the customers' reactions and they're taking selfies next to the display, that's the reward.

FT: Were you ever apprehensive about stepping out of the box?

JL: Sure I was. I wasn't trying to be a rebel and I still wanted to make store manager one day, so I wasn't trying to put myself in a bad light. Back then it wasn't exactly encouraged to think outside the box.

RC: Every time. When you challenge the status quo, it doesn't always make you popular for the right reasons. I've always been met by the "Eeyores" and doubters that don't see value in creating a shopping experience while others love the new and cool things. My focus is on innovation and sales. Luckily, my ambition and drive far exceed any level of apprehension I may have ever had.

FT: What would you tell others within the company to encourage them to create their own merchandising marvels?

JL: It's not for everyone and it does take thought, planning and time, but when it's done right the reaction from your customers and your teammates and the energy it brings to the store is priceless.

RC: Take the tools Gary Niehaus, Jenny Juengling and I are sending you and build something unforgettable that drives sales and keeps customers coming back. Build that display that will resonate with the customer so the next time they need flowers, a plant, or a gift, they make Stater Bros. their floral destination.

Celebrating you for your hard work and dedication.

Stepping into a Brighter Future

By Annaley Becerril

In the spirit of giving, Stater Bros. Charities recently teamed up with Nestlé NIDO to extend a helping hand to Shoes That Fit, a wonderful nonprofit dedicated to providing new shoes for children in need. The result? A heartening donation at a local San Bernardino elementary school, where students received a brand-new pair of athletic shoes. Over 600 pairs of shoes were donated to help empower kids to play, have fun, and learn.

Thank you for being a part of this incredible journey of giving, and we look forward to continuing to make a difference together.

Congratulations on Your Retirement

Wrap Up Your Holiday Shopping Safely:

Tips from our Security Department to Keep Your Holidays Merry and Safe!

The holiday season is upon us, and as the days sparkle with lights and cheer, it also brings a rush of crowds to busy shopping centers. At this time of joy and celebration, it's important to keep safety in mind while navigating your shopping experience. Our Security Team has some valuable tips to ensure your holiday is enjoyable and safe.

1. Plan your shopping spree:

Make a list, organize your route, and inform someone close to you about your plans. This simple step ensures someone knows your whereabouts, providing an extra layer of security.

2. Stay alert and aware:

Be aware of your surroundings and trust your instincts. If something doesn't feel right, alert nearby store personnel or contact law enforcement immediately. If you see something, say something.

3. Shop in pairs or groups:

There's truth in the saying, "Safety in numbers." Shopping with friends or family not only adds to the fun but also enhances your safety. Criminals are less likely to target individuals who are with others. Plus, it's more enjoyable to do your holiday shopping with loved ones!

4. Secure your valuables:

Avoid wearing expensive jewelry or carrying large amounts of cash. Keep your valuables secure and out of sight to deter potential thieves. Consider using a crossbody bag or a fanny pack to keep your valuables close to your body.

5. Be cautious in parking lots:

Park in well-lit areas close to the store entrance if possible. Always lock your car, and never leave valuables in plain sight. This would include cellphones, laptops, backpacks, shopping bags, and purses. If you feel uneasy, request a store employee or security personnel to accompany you to your vehicle.

6. Prevent package theft:

Use a delivery locker or schedule packages to be delivered when you are home or when a neighbor can pick them up from your porch.

7. Protect yourself from credit card fraud:

Inspect Automated Teller Machines (ATMs), Point of Sale (POS) terminals, and other card readers before use. Look for anything loose, crooked, damaged, or scratched. Don't use any card reader if you notice anything unusual. Keep track of your cards and report any lost or stolen cards or suspicious transactions as soon as possible.

8. Protect yourself from cyber fraud:

When shopping online, use secure websites that use encryption to protect your personal information. Look for a padlock symbol in the address bar. Use strong passwords for your online accounts and monitor your accounts regularly.

By following these simple yet effective tips, you can enjoy a safe and secure holiday shopping experience. Let's make this holiday season memorable for all the right reasons – with joy, warmth, and, above all, safety.

Happy Holidays and Safe Shopping!
